Hatcher Named Chairman of the Board

W. Wallace Hatcher, a 1955 graduate of Bridgewater College and President of Lantz Construction Company in Broadway, Va., was named Chairman of the Board of Trustees at the board's annual meeting on November 1. Hatcher succeeds Dr. Garland F. Miller, who had served as Chairman since November, 1978, and who was named Chairman Emeritus.

Hatcher has been a member of the Board of Trustees since 1973 and has served since 1978 as Secretary of the Board. He has been serving as National Chairman of the College's current development program, Impact/91—A Projection in Excellence, and he will continue in that role.

"I am who I am because of the background that I received as a student at Bridgewater College and because of the caring and concern shown by the College during those years from 1951-1955," Hatcher said. "As the years have gone by, I have grown to really love this institution and to recognize every year what Bridgewater means to the world.

"Bridgewater is one of the finest institutions of higher education on the east coast," Hatcher added. "I have a deep appreciation for all that Bridgewater stands for."

Hatcher was President of the Senior Class in 1955, and he has been active in the Alumni Association since 1965, serving in 1970-71 as President. He also serves as an Alumni Admissions Volunteer, each year contacting prospective students to talk with them about their future plans and about Bridgewater College.

Of his new position at Bridgewater, Hatcher said, "I consider it a tremendous challenge and a great opportunity, but it certainly was a total surprise to be asked to be Chairman. There are so many capable members of the Board of Trustees that I can only say that I was very surprised.

"To continue the pace and image that was set for the Board of Trustees by the two previous chairmen (Miller and Dr. R. Douglas Nininger, who served from 1959-78) will be a tremendous responsibility," Hatcher said, "but will certainly be a worthwhile challenge."

Hatcher is a native of Bassett, Va., and attended John D. Bassett High School. According to Hatcher, while a student there, one of his teachers suggested that he might like Bridgewater, and his parents made it possible for him to attend. "I owe a tremendous debt of gratitude to both my mother and father for making my education possible," he said.

Hatcher is married to the former Carolyn Lantz, a 1957 Bridgewater graduate. The couple has three children, Michael, who graduated from Bridgewater in 1982, Gayle, who attended Bridgewater, and Lisa Carol.

Hatcher is on the Board of Directors of the First National Bank of Broadway, Rockingham Mutual Insurance Company, and the Community Mediation Center. He is a member of the Linville Creek Church of the Brethren where he has served as Deacon, Trustee, Church School Teacher, member of the Church Board, and Chairman of that Board in 1983. In addition, he served from 1981-84 as a member of the Board of the Shenandoah District Church of the Brethren.

He has been a member since 1973 of both the Industrial Development Authority of Rockingham County and the Rockingham County Building Board of Appeals. He also is a member of the Troop Committee of Boy Scout Troop 1 in Broadway which he served as chairman for a number of years.

He is a past Director of the Chambers of Commerce in Harrisonburg-Rockingham County and Broadway-Timberville, and he is a past President of the Broadway Elementary PTA and the Broadway-Timberville Industrial Corporation.

In 1966, Hatcher was awarded a Distinguished Service Award by the Broadway-Timberville Jaycees, and in 1976 he was selected "Boss of the Year" by the local chapter of the National Secretaries Association. He was included in the 1967 edition of Outstanding Young Men of America.

Mapp Prepares Students for Success

Bridgewater College is what it is today because of its people—people who have dedicated themselves over many years to making their programs and their students the best they can be. Laura Mapp is such a person.

Miss Mapp, an associate professor of physical education and coach of three women's sports, is currently in her 25th year at B.C.

Coach Mapp's interest in athletics began during her days at Westhampton College, now the University of Richmond, where she earned her B.S. in 1954.

"My interest couldn't go back to my high school background because we didn't have physical education or athletic teams (for girls)," Mapp recalled. "When I went away to college I got interested in playing on the team, and that was my first exposure to athletics other than tennis."

Mapp, who attended Northampton High School on Virginia's eastern shore, entered college with an interest in math, but after playing three sports (basketball, field hockey and tennis) during her freshman year at Westhampton, she elected to pursue a degree in physical education. She later received a master's degree from the University of Tennessee.

"I respected the person who was coaching me, and, after my first year, I decided I'd like to coach too," Mapp said.

Her career choice was a good one. She entered the 1985-86 basketball season with more career victories than any other active Division III coach. Her 319 victories against 162 losses ranks fourth among all college levels. Mapp also sports winning records in field hockey (157-148-35) and tennis (103-102-3).

Mapp's day usually begins on campus at 7 a.m. and commonly ends 12 to 14 hours later. She may be teaching class, practicing, or compiling statistics on a computer. Whatever the task, she has one goal—to do her best—and doing that means helping others to find the best in themselves.

"I think you always have to recognize the individual. When you are working with someone, that person is the most important person and you need to make him or her feel that way," Mapp said.

"I'm not satisfied with players or students unless I feel they have done their best. I try to push them to that extent," Mapp said. "This is just a short period of time in their lives, and athletics is a small part of what it's all about. If they are satisfied here with less than their best, then I'm afraid that they will do the same thing somewhere down the line." Mapp finds that difficult to accept.

"My job is to give them the drive and motivation to make them want to do their best," she continued.

President Geisert described Mapp's 25 years at Bridgewater by saying, "Laura Mapp's quarter of a century at Bridgewater College has been a most productive investment in our school. She is known to us and to our alumni as an excellent coach, a delightful person and a true professional. She has always had high expectations for her students in the realms of both athletic performance and personal behavior. She is a fine lady in every respect."

Telecourses Enter 10th Semester

Bridgewater's 10th semester of offering telecourses will begin January 11 with "The Business File" (BUS 105) and "Teaching Writing: A Process Approach" (EDU 322). "Planet Earth" (GEOL 200) will begin January 22, and "Heritage: Civilization and the Jews" will begin January 23. An orientation seminar has been scheduled for January 4.

The three-credit classes range from seven to fourteen weeks in length and are shown weekly for 30 minutes or an hour on WVPT-TV, the public television station located in Harrisonburg.

Telecourses involve the regularly televised lessons, textbook readings, written assignments and examinations. The only requirements are that students be high school graduates and possess a desire and commitment to continuing their educations.

Additional information about Bridgewater's telecourse program may be obtained from Dr. John W. Cooper, Dean for Academic Affairs.

North River Floods Part of Campus

North River expanded to many times its normal width, with strong currents sweeping away goalie cages and fences.

In the early morning hours of November 5, flood waters from the North River crested on the Bridgewater College campus. The water had far exceeded the river banks and had completely covered Jopson Field, halting partway up the hill adjacent to the football field and just inches from the back door to Nininger Hall. All of Bridgewater's athletic fields were under water—the baseball, field hockey, football, lacrosse, and intramural and practice fields—as well as the tennis courts next to Nininger Hall and, of course, the track. One dugout had been washed down river, one goalpost was parallel to the ground, and very little fencing was where it had been a scant few hours before. The College had lost goalie cages, equipment, archery targets, a backstop and a batting cage. The football bleachers were splintered from the force of the water, floating debris, and from being entangled with what had been the baseball fence and the fence along River Road. The scoreboards and one goalpost were standing but not sound. It has been estimated that at times and in places the fields were under as much as six feet of swiftly moving water, and, as the water began to recede later that day, a layer of silt and gravel covered the soil. On parts of the fields, soil had been washed from one spot and deposited on another, thereby doing extensive damage to what had been one of the best outdoor athletic facilities in the Old Dominion Athletic Conference.

Bridgewater College, however, was very fortunate. While many residents of the town of Bridgewater and, in fact, of much of West Virginia and Rockingham County and later of a large portion of Virginia, were evacuated, the College was not affected in this way. Shortly after midnight, while some faculty, staff and students were busily evacuating everything movable from the lower level of Nininger Hall, President Geisert, students, an alumnus, and staff members built a dam at the back of the heat plant which prevented all but backwater from getting into that building. Such efforts would have saved the College countless dollars had the water continued to rise and enter Nininger Hall, and had the true force of the water entered the heat plant and severely damaged the College's heating unit.

Following the flood, students assisted in gathering debris from the field and several members of the campus community provided aid where needed throughout the town and surrounding Virginia and West Virginia counties. Much of the actual campus cleanup, however, has been hampered by wet weather that has not enabled the field to dry enough for equipment and machinery to be driven onto the field, but repair and improvements can be expected as soon as physically possible.

According to Dr. Geisert, "It is our intention to move ahead with making the expenditures necessary to return the athletic field to the level of its status prior to the flood. It is also our intention to investigate such matters as constructing a more permanent type of bleacher arrangement as a replacement for the seating destroyed, as well as to look into several other possible improvements."

A specially-designated committee currently is obtaining cost information on such matters as replacement bleachers, athletic equipment and playing field fence replacement, and the College will be seeking bids on new surfaces for the all-weather track and for the tennis courts near Nininger Hall. While it is impossible to know for certain at this time, damage caused by the flood has been estimated at $175,000.

From the Director of Planned Giving

Why Have An Estate Plan?

by William R. Swecker

Institutions such as Bridgewater College do their best job of serving society in providing quality higher education if they carefully prepare for the future. Strategic planning helps us to examine how best to use our resources in light of the local, regional and national environment in which we operate. The availability of financial resources to continue and expand our work is a key factor in our planning.

Like institutions, more and more people today are recognizing the need to think about their personal financial future and to develop plans which will conserve their assets, provide for their well-being and distribute their estates as they wish.

Whether you're reviewing your existing estate plan or just beginning to plan, the place to start is with your objectives, which may vary from person to person. Anyone who owns property, who has cash intended for savings, or who owns life insurance, has an estate. Simply stated, an estate plan is your design for the conservation, use and ultimate disposition of your assets—during your working years, during your retirement and after you pass on.

While an estate plan seems to be primarily a financial plan, it is also a people plan; we plan not only to conserve, protect and maximize our assets, but also to fulfill our desire to better the society in which we live.

Changes in your own personal and financial circumstances are good reasons to review your estate plans. Other factors such as inflation and changes in state and federal laws likewise necessitate a re-examination of the plans you have made.

The Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981 alone may be reason enough to prompt a thorough review of your estate plan. Also, the state in which you live may have changed laws which will have a bearing on your plans. Your attorney can help determine the impact of such changes.

Your will is the cornerstone of your estate plan. Bringing it up-to-date is essential. Your will accommodates the disposition of most of your assets—but not all of them. Some property you own will be distributed independently of the provisions of your will. This may include jointly-owned property, certain trust benefits, life insurance proceeds, pension funds and other employee benefits. All of these assets are an integral part of your estate plan and their management and ultimate disposition should be carefully coordinated with the terms of your will.

Estate planning should be approached in light of family needs and lifetime interests. Lifelong commitments should influence the distribution of lifelong accumulations.

Persons committed to Bridgewater College evidence their commitment throughout their lives in many ways. Many frequently ask us for suggestions on how they may perpetuate their commitment to us and their support of our work in their estate plan. We are always pleased to answer these questions.

Careful planning of your estate is the best way to ensure that your lifetime financial goals are met and that the commitments to your family, friends and charitable causes such as Bridgewater College are maximized. The complexity of laws and taxes virtually requires the expert advice of an attorney or other professional advisor.

The Planned Giving Office at Bridgewater College is always available to provide you with information on how a charitable gift in your estate plan can help insure a sound future for Bridgewater College.

91st Spiritual Life Institute Set

Dr. James C. Logan, professor of Systematic Theology at Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, D.C., will give an address titled "A Whole Christ for a Whole Person" at the first general session of the College's 91st Spiritual Life Institute on Tuesday evening, February 4 at 7:30 p.m. Logan is a prominent lecturer, writer and teacher who, from 1956-66, served as a pastor in Ohio and Virginia before beginning his teaching career in the seminary.

The Institute begins with a seminar/workshop for pastors on Tuesday from 2:00-4:00 p.m. Logan will be the resource leader for this session, using the theme "Theology and Preaching."

The annual Spiritual Life Institute is sponsored by Bridgewater College as a time for inspiration and in-service training for pastors and local church leaders. The public is invited to attend all general sessions.

The College Concert Choir, under the direction of Prof. Jesse E. Hopkins Jr., will give a brief concert at the beginning of the Tuesday evening session.

Dr. Homer C. Phifer Jr., Executive Presbyter of the Shenandoah Presbytery in Harrisonburg, will be the preacher for the Wednesday evening service, speaking on "A People of Vision, God's Call to the Future." Phifer will also speak on Wednesday morning on "The Self-Esteem of the Minister."

Additional speakers for the Spiritual Life Institute include: Dr. Robert W. Koons, Chaplain, Gettysburg Theological Seminary, Gettysburg, Pa.; Rev. Melanie A. May, Executive, Interchurch Relations, Church of the Brethren, Elgin, Ill.; Dr. A. Don Augsburg, Professor of the Work of the Church, Eastern Mennonite Seminary, Harrisonburg, Va.; Dr. Guy E. Wampler Jr., Moderator-Elect of the Annual Conference and pastor of Hagerstown Church of the Brethren; Rev. Paul L. Groff, Pastor, Westminster Church of the Brethren, Westminster, Md.; Dr. Phillip K. Bradley, Pastor, University Park Church of the Brethren, Hyattsville, Md.; Dr. John W. Cooper, Dean for Academic Affairs and Associate Professor of Philosophy and Religion, Bridgewater College.

Trustees Name Board Room, Approve Budget

Phil Stone addresses his remarks to Garland Miller during the dedication of the board room.

The Board of Trustees approved an operating budget of $7,551,898 for the 1985-86 academic year, the largest budget in the history of the College.

"The budget for the current fiscal year anticipates utilization of contributed support of $650,000 from private sources as well as endowment earnings of $580,000 to supplement income from tuition fees and other sources," said President Geisert in announcing the figure. At the board meeting held November 1, Geisert noted that the success of the fiscal operations for the year will be highly dependent again upon the effectiveness of the College's annual fund effort and upon continuing careful attention to budget controls throughout the entire college.

The Board, which met for the first time in the new board room on the top floor of Flory Hall, dedicated the room "The Garland F. and Edith H. Miller Board Room" in recognition of the two Bridgewater residents. Dr. Miller was presented with a plaque identifying him as a Life Trustee and Chairman Emeritus.

Also elected to Life Trustee status were George E. Bryan Jr. of Dayton, Va., Loren S. Simpson of Bridgewater, formerly of Westminster, Md., and R. Lowell Wine of Roanoke, Va.

William D. Wampler of Harrisonburg was elected to succeed W. Wallace Hatcher, '55, as Secretary of the Board, following Hatcher's election as Chairman of the Board. Re-elected to serve along with President Geisert in other official relationships to the Board and to the College were Phillip C. Stone, of Linville, Va., as Vice Chairman for Educational Policy and Campus Life, and James L. Keeler, of Timberville, Va., as Vice Chairman for Development and Public Relations.

Trustees re-elected to five-year terms on the Board to succeed themselves were Ernest W. Ausherman of Jefferson, Md., Lester B. Hershey Sr. of Staunton, Cleatus E. Houff of Mt. Sidney, and Margaret F. Rainbolt of Mt. Joy, Pa. G. Steven Agee of Salem and E. Harley Kline of Manassas were elected to new five-year terms on the Board. D. Miller Davis and Charles M. Sackett, both of Westminster, Md., were elected to complete unexpired terms on the Board.

During its meetings, the Board took note with sadness of the recent deaths of two Bridgewater stalwarts: Dr. Anna B. Mow of Roanoke, Va., renowned as a seminary professor and popular Christian speaker and counselor, whose name is associated with the college's developing Mow Chair in Comparative Religions; and Dr. Michael Robert Zigler of Broadway, Va., a Bridgewater alumnus of 1916 known as a Christian leader in post World War II reconstruction efforts and Church of the Brethren volunteer. Both Dr. Mow and Dr. Zigler had earlier been awarded honorary degrees by Bridgewater College.

Business Campaign Sets $100,000 Goal

Approximately 50 of the 70 volunteers for Bridgewater's Business and Professional Campaign attended a kick-off breakfast in early December, and the volunteers have been busy making calls throughout the area. Spurred on by an anonymous challenge that will match up to $20,000 in new and increased giving, the volunteers have received in excess of $50,000 in contributions and pledges as this publication goes to press. Funds are being solicited for several capital projects at Bridgewater including the repairs and improvements of flood-damaged Jopson Field and the replacement of the basketball playing floor in Nininger Hall.

The goal of the 1985-86 Business and Professional Campaign is 20/20, a 20% increase in donors and a 20% increase in contributions. These increases, coupled with the $20,000 challenge, will bring Bridgewater's total to $100,000 by the end of the campaign.

Leadership Society Inducted Into ODK

Bridgewater College was officially inducted into the National Leadership Honor Society, Omicron Delta Kappa, on Nov. 24, thus acknowledging the College's fine reputation among American colleges and universities and the accomplishments of its students who build that reputation.

Members of Bridgewater's leadership society, all of whom were inducted into ODK, include faculty members Dr. Gary Adams, Dr. William Miracle, Dr. Gary Tyeryar and Mr. John White; Professor Emeritus Dr. John Martin; students

Wendy Farrell, Connie Glembot, Diane Krahe, Lynn Lewis and Heather Orrison; and 1985 graduates Karen Chestnut Cox, Kristi Ginger Fry, Troy Glembot, Beth Ann Powers, Phil Spickler, Dana Strickler, Michelle Volker, Nick Wakeman and Lisa Wine.

ODK was founded in 1914 at Washington and Lee University "to recognize and encourage superior scholarship and leadership by men of exemplary character." In 1974, the organization became coed. Today there are 187 collegiate circles across the United States.

Magic Memories—Homecoming 1985

Seventy-four runners line up for the 6th annual 5-K Run.

"Magic Memories" was an appropriate theme for Bridgewater's 1985 Homecoming, as a full week of activities culminated in a gorgeous Saturday of reviving old memories and making new ones.

Homecoming Week started on Sunday evening with the movie, "Somewhere In Time." A variety show titled "Zeigfield Follies" was held Monday evening, and Queen Angie Foster and her court were honored Tuesday with the Queen's Banquet. Members of the court, selected by the students, included senior Diane Krahe, junior Shawn Overstreet, sophomore Wendy Wade and freshman Renae Huntley.

Wednesday's activity was a "Farrells Ice Cream Night" ice cream social in the Snack Shop. An apple cider reception preceded Thursday's "Old-Fashioned Dinner" and was the prelude to the beginning of float decorating in and around the college barn. Students and alumni finished their floats Friday after the bonfire and pep rally behind Dillon Hall.

Those who were on campus Homecoming Day enjoyed a beautiful Indian Summer day that began bright and early with the 6th annual "5-K Run" for students, alumni and friends. The Reuel B. Pritchett Museum and the swimming pool in Nininger Hall were open during the morning, and everyone was invited to the annual Home Economics Department Open House and Coffee Hour in Moomaw Hall.

the Homecoming Parade at noon, followed by the football game between the Eagles and the Quakers of Guilford College. The Turner Ashby High School marching band from nearby Dayton performed and the queen and her court were presented at halftime.

Receptions, reunion photographs and reunion dinners followed the game, and a delightful concert by the College's Chorale and Stage Band and the Homecoming dance, "A Night of Illusion," rounded out the day's events.

Alumni Cited At President's Dinner

Two Bridgewater College alumni were honored with outstanding achievement awards during the President's Dinner held in the Kline Campus Center on November 1. The award recipients were Dr. John C. Harshbarger Jr., of Arlington, Va., a 1957 graduate and Director of the Registry of Tumors in Lower Animals at the National Museum of Natural History at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., and George W. Swartz, of Roanoke, Va., a 1935 Bridgewater graduate who was largely responsible for the emergence of the vocational education program throughout Virginia.

George and Avis Mundy Swartz, both '35, sons Ned, '65, and Fred, '58, and Fred's daughters, Connie, '84, and Terrie, '87, are shown here at the President's Dinner representing three generations of Bridgewater alumni.

Harshbarger, who was the speaker at the dinner, has collected thousands of specimens of invertebrate and cold-blooded vertebrate animals at the Registry, which serves as a diagnostic center, literature center, research group, and general clearinghouse for information on tumors and related disorders found in lower animals. His work includes cataloging the specimens and carrying out laboratory work, collecting his own specimens, and corresponding with other individuals interested in his work.

Harshbarger also is a prolific writer, having written or co-authored in excess of 70 articles.

Harshbarger's most recent work has dealt with cancer and other tumors in these animals, how these diseases affect the different species, and how we might learn about cancer in other animals and in humans from his research. He has also discovered new organisms that may cause serious diseases in birds, domestic animals and humans never before detected in clams and oysters in the Chesapeake Bay by electron microscopy.

Swartz, who also received an Outstanding Achievement Award, taught and held various administrative positions for many years in Virginia's Augusta County (teacher, principal, first industrial arts teacher, assistant principal of the county's vocational technical school, and director of training for the Woodrow Wilson Rehabilitation Center). He also served as Assistant State Supervisor, and he was State Supervisor of Trade and Industrial Education until his retirement in 1976. While State Supervisor, he helped to design, construct and put into operation 85 new vocational centers at the high school level in Virginia, and he coordinated the vocational programs of Virginia's technical schools and community colleges.

Also at the dinner, W. Wallace Hatcher, newly-elected Chairman of the Board and the National Chairman of Impact/91—A Projection in Excellence, announced that more than $10 million had been pledged or contributed toward the development program's goal of $18 million.

Entertainment at the occasion was provided by the Bridgewater College Stage Band.

Invitations to the President's Dinner are extended each year to those supporters of the College who have donated $500 or more in the previous fiscal year.

Regular Season Champs Take 2nd in Tourney

Freshman Dorita Puffenbarger spikes one over the net as the Eagles win the most games ever.

The 1985 volleyball team will go into the record books as one of the finest ever at Bridgewater College. The Eagles bumped and spiked their way to a new school standard of 22 wins in a single season against just six losses.

"This was one of the most enjoyable seasons I've ever had," said Mary Frances Heishman, who has coached the volleyball team since it began a decade ago. We had a great group of players who really performed well together and supported each other," she added.

B.C. claimed the regular season conference title and the number one seed for the ODAC tournament with an unblemished 7-0 record. The Eagles defeated defending conference champion Eastern Mennonite 10-15, 17-15, 15-7, 15-9 en route to their first regular season championship.

In the tournament, the Eagles and Royals of EMC met again—a rematch of the 1984 title game. "We got off to a good start with a 15-6 win," noted Heishman. "But the second game proved to be the pivotal point. The Royals captured the momentum and the game, 16-14. B.C. recovered long enough for a 15-13 win in game three of the best-of-five match. However "things started going wrong," according to Heishman, as B.C. fell 15-5, 15-3 in the remaining two games.

"We played very well, but teams pushed us in the tournament," stated Heishman. The Eagles swept past Roanoke 15-0, 15-1, 15-8 before holding off Randolph-Macon Woman's College, 15-2, 15-2, 8-15, 15-11 to reach the semifinals. B.C. earned the right to battle its cross-county rival EMC with a 15-4, 10-15, 15-10, 15-7 decision over Emory & Henry.

Seniors Jennifer Burkholder (Dayton, Va.) and Shirley Brown (Broadway, Va.) capped off their final seasons by earning first team All-ODAC honors.

Eagles Look Ahead to Next Year

During the 50th season of B.C. football, the Eagles were not trying to perform miracles, but rather take a new step in the right direction.

The first full season has concluded for coach Joe Bush and his aspirations still soar high. Although the final 1-8 record is identical to that of 1984, right down to the victory over Maryville (35-14), the 1985 edition was not a carbon copy of those in recent past. Simply being competitive week in and out was one goal of the former VMI assistant of 15 years—and that the Eagles were.

"Take two games out, St. Paul's (33-0) and Randolph Macon (49-7), and we were very competitive, particularly in the conference," said Bush. "I was not disappointed at all and, in fact, I was very pleased. We played hard, didn't quit and felt like we could win."

Even the flood could not dampen the Eagles' spirit. Unable to practice, much less play on Jopson Field, the Eagles would trek several blocks to the town's lawn party grounds each day. The season finale was played at nearby Turner Ashby High School, where Frostburg State won the mud battle, 10-0.

When Bush arrived at B.C. just over a year ago, his key word overall was "attitude" while on the field it was "defense."

Against an extremely tough Division III schedule, which includes three non-conference foes above Division III caliber, the Eagles' morale remained high. Meanwhile, the defense established the foundation for future seasons.

The young defensive unit was anchored by sophomore tackle Mark Saunders (Richmond, Va.) and freshman linebacker Chuck Boller (Harrisonburg, Va.). Saunders (5'10", 230 lbs.) earned first team all-conference while Boller (6', 190 lbs.) won second team honors.

"Mark is the best defensive tackle in the ODAC without a doubt," said Bush, "and I think Chuck deserved first team."

Boller actually led B.C. with 59 tackles and 40 assists while Saunders recorded 47 tackles, 25 assists and a team-high four quarterback sacks.

Offensively, the Eagles struggled to put points on the board. "What we need are more linemen like Bob Kite," said Bush. The 6'2", 240-pound sophomore from Harrisonburg was named to the ODAC second team. Until the Eagles recruit more linemen of his size, protecting the quarterback will remain a problem.

Injuries also hampered the B.C. offense. Starting center Jeff Thompson (Falls Church, Va.) and tailback Billy Mays (Annapolis, Md.) suffered season-ending misfortunes. Even backup center Scott Sinclair (Richmond, Va.) played with a broken thumb.

"When he (Thompson) got hurt, that was one of the key events of the season," said Bush. "He was really coming along and I would say he would have made all-conference center." The sophomore went down with a knee injury during the second game.

Mays, a sophomore, was averaging 75 yards per game rushing before dislocating his shoulder at St. Paul's.

All in all, the future looks promising and optimism is high for the Eagles' football program.

"I enjoyed the season and had more fun coaching this year than I had any of the previous years. I enjoy working with this type of program (Division III), the type of kids (student-athletes) and the coaches," assessed Bush.

New and Old Blend For Eagles

"A team does not always need to have the best talent to be a winner. I believe that at all levels of play, the team with the proper 'blend of players' will win just as often as a team loaded with superstars."

That's what men's basketball coach Bill Leatherman said as he began his first season at the Eagles' helm. With a 1985-86 squad dominated by youth, the former Division I assistant is selling the "blend to win" in Nininger Hall.

As Leatherman's predecessor of 23 years, Mel Myers, departed the college basketball scene, so did five players with experience graduate.

"We need to blend our new players with our returnees, and that will take some time. I believe 'patience' will be the key to developing the type of program we all want," said Leatherman.

Leatherman's first collegiate squad as a head coach (he spent six years as an assistant at James Madison University) consists of just one senior, a trio of juniors, four sophomores and a half dozen freshmen.

Rich McCulley (6'4", 200 lbs., Salem, Va.) has appeared in 42 contests during his two seasons with the Eagles. The scrappy forward has high hopes that his senior year will be his finest.

The juniors all return with collegiate experience through reserve roles. Alan Cramer (6'5", 195, Mt. Solon, Va.) has averaged 2.1 points per game (ppg) and 1.2 rebounds per game (rpg) at forward. Lefthanded Garrett Harris (6'1", 180, Buena Vista, Va.) has netted 3.1 ppg at the midpoint of his career. Darrell Plogger (5'8", 155, Lexington, Va.) first played last year and provides depth at point guard.

The majority of the experience returns in the sophomore class, headed by Joe Ott (6'3", 180, Stephens City, Va.) and Chris Cockrell (6'3", 190, Richmond, Va.). Ott appeared in all 25 games during last winter's 7-18 season. He produced 9.0 ppg and grabbed 2.7 rpg. Cockrell, a strong inside player, returns as B.C.'s leading scorer at 13.3 ppg and rebounder with 7.3 rpg.

Sophomore Kevin Moomaw (6'0", 190, Orkney Springs, Va.) is a "zone buster" with a nice outside shooting touch, and he added 4.6 ppg off the bench in '84-85. Classmate John Curry (6'3", 180, Verona, Va.), who transferred to B.C. this fall, will be the starting point guard.

The talented freshmen include guard Brad Archer (6'1", 155, Virginia Beach, Va.), guard Stacey Lee (5'11", 160, Keysville, Va.), forward Todd DeBerry (6'3", 160, Roanoke, Va.), guard Dave Robinson (6'0", 185, Dunbar, W.Va.), forward Jeff Mauzy (6'6", 175, Churchville, Va.), and center Tim Llewellyn (6'6", 180, Richmond, Va.)

Offensively, coach Leatherman expects his team to be very unselfish in shot selection and to attack the defense. The Eagles will play a very aggressive style of defense, protecting the 21-25 foot area around the basket.

"Our ultimate goal is to win the ODAC Tournament and represent our conference in the NCAA playoffs. I will feel like we are on our way when the entire campus is excited about a home game. We want to make B.C. basketball 'the place to be' on game nights," said Leatherman.

Cohesive Squad Looks To Improve

Coach Laura Mapp's 25th Bridgewater women's basketball team will be small in number yet varied in experience. The 1985-86 squad will rely on a balanced offense and multiple defenses as it attempts to record a 33rd winning season in the program's 37-year history.

Returning are four starters among eight letter winners from last year's squad that finished 7-7 for fifth place in the Old Dominion Athletic Conference and 8-15 overall. Seniors Renee Dingus (5'9", F, Manassas, Va.) and Shirley Brown (5'5", G, Broadway, Va.) have been playing steadily since their freshman seasons. Dingus gives B.C. strong playunderneath and averaged 7.2 points per game (ppg) and 6.4 rebounds per game (rpg) last year. Brown adds finesse with her "downtown" perimeter shooting. A two-sport standout, Brown averaged 6.7 ppg and 3.6 rpg as a junior.

The roster also features three players who played scholastically at Fort Defiance High School just south of Eagle fans look on as John Curry shoots against Roanoke College.

Bridgewater: sophomores Marie Hess (5'11", F/C, Bridgewater, Va.) and Jolene Cline (5'8", G/F, New Hope, Va.) and freshman Beth Kitts (5'10", F, Staunton, Va.). Hess, the Eagles' tallest player, scored 8.2 ppg while snaring a team-high 6.8 rpg last season. Cline scored 6 ppg and tallied 4.5 rpg off the bench a year ago, and Kitts is a welcome addition to the front line.

Running the offense will be junior point guard Diana Beard (5'5", Roanoke, Va.), who paced the Eagles in scoring the past two seasons including a 13.4 ppg performance in 1984-85.

Also returning are sophomores Connie Cochrane (5'8", F, Powhatan, Va.), Mary Beth Thompson (5'7", G, Edinburg, Va.) and Tricia Vandevander (5'8", F, Bacova, Va.). Sophomore newcomer Sonya Williams (5'4", G, Strasburg, Va.) rounds out the 10-member roster.

Coach Mapp hopes this team will "gel" and play "up to its potential."

"Three of them have played together for one year in high school. Shirley and Renee are in their fourth years here and Diana has played with them for the past two years. Those type of things should be positive for us," Mapp said.

The Eagles worked individually over the summer according to Mapp, who says, "This is what it takes . . . working on your own during the off-season." The extra hours may give B.C. the necessary edge to improve upon its ODAC standing.

"We don't have a lot of height, so we are going to try to use quickness and speed to compensate. Hopefully we will be able to mix the offense up. If we can get everybody doing what they are capable of doing we should be able to do better," Mapp said.

New Department Head Happy Here

"I've looked for a place like this ever since I began teaching," said Dr. David K. McQuilkin, Bridgewater's first-year chairman of the department and associate professor of history and political science. "It fulfills all of the things I've wanted in a college teaching position."

McQuilkin compares Bridgewater to his alma mater, Muskingum College in New Concord, Ohio, stating that the size, philosophy and students are very similar. "I love it," he said. "I'm very happy here. I like the area, the faculty, the administration, and the kids are nice."

According to McQuilkin, "I came here to serve as chairman of the department and to help develop the new political science major that was recently put into the Bridgewater curriculum." The new major is the fourth area of the department in addition to international studies, history, and history and political science.

Having a major in political science "rounds out the offerings of the department," McQuilkin said. "It gives us coverage in all areas of history and political science instead of just including the political science into the other areas of study." He believes that the separate major will help those students looking for special careers in government, foreign service, public service and international studies.

McQuilkin completed his graduate studies at Kent State University, earning both a master's and a doctorate degree there, in Russian Diplomatic History with minors in European History (specifically German), Asian History, China and Japan since 1850, and American Diplomatic History. He also holds a master's degree from Case Western Reserve University in library science.

Prior to coming to Bridgewater, McQuilkin taught social studies in Warren, Ohio, was a graduate assistant and visiting assistant professor at Kent State, served as an instructor at Cuyahoga Community College and at Akron University, and was an assistant professor at LaGrange College in LaGrange, Georgia. Most recently, he served a year as Director of Learning Resources and as an associate professor of history at Reinhardt College in Waleska, Georgia.

Courses that McQuilkin has taught include American Government, International Relations, Comparative Western Democratic Governments, Russian History, European History, American History, Middle East History and Western Civilization.

"I enjoy teaching and communicating with students," said McQuilkin. "I like being with the students and interacting with them. I want to communicate to them the nature of the historical process, who we are, what we are, where we've come from, and why we are who we are as individuals and as a society."

"I want to make the students aware of the community and society," he added, "to be aware of what is going on in the world around them. I also want to teach them the necessary skills of writing and communication."

"I'm quite pleased with what I've seen," continued McQuilkin. "The place is simply pleasant to be around."

His wife, Charlette, has a Ph.D. in special education and is teaching at Stanley Elementary School in Page County. She, too, has taught at the college level and has a background in school administration. Their two children are students at Turner Ashby High School in Dayton. Brad, 15, is a sophomore; and Meredith, 14, is a freshman.

"Char is really pleased to be here," McQuilkin said. "She really likes the area. I think of all the places we've lived, this is one of the nicest."

"I intend to stay here," he continued. "I like the college, the community, the people I work with. Basically, I like what I am doing."

Despite this being his first experience as a department head, McQuilkin said he has had experience working with budgets, managing staff and dealing with administration. He also has "developed a democratic philosophy of management that works." According to McQuilkin, you need to "treat people with dignity and respect, as colleagues, and also involve the entire department in the decision-making process. After all, the decisions you make have a bearing on them."

Wendell Flory Named Director of Church Relations

Dr. and Mrs. Wendell Flory.

Dr. Wendell P. Flory, '40, has been named Director of Church Relations at Bridgewater College effective January 1, 1986. Flory will succeed Dr. S. Earl Mitchell, '32, who will be retiring on December 31 after having served five years in this position.

Flory retired last summer from pastoral service, having served the Church of the Brethren in Charlottesville (1958-63), Waynesboro (1963-72), Gaithersburg, Md., at the Flower Hill Church (1972-78), and Easton, Md. (1978-85). Prior to his becoming a pastor, Flory served as a missionary in China, his birthplace, from 1946-49, as a member of the Foreign Mission Office in the Church of the Brethren headquarters in Elgin, Ill., from 1949-52, and as a missionary to India from 1952-58.

In addition to his bachelor of arts degree from Bridgewater, Flory has a Master of Divinity degree from Bethany Theological Seminary (1943), a Master of Arts degree from Yale University (1949), and a Doctor of Ministry degree from Bethany (1977).

A grandson of Daniel Christian Flory, founder of Bridgewater College, Flory served as a member of the Board of Trustees from 1983-85. He also served as Moderator of the Mid-Atlantic District in 1982.

He has been married since 1945 to Marie Mason Flory, '46, and the couple has four children: Theodore W. (Ted), '70, who is assistant professor of computer science and manager of the C. E. Shull Computing Center at Bridgewater; Philip E., '75; Janet Flory Flaten, '76; and Mary Jo Flory Steury, '78.

M. R. Zigler Dies

Michael Robert (M. R.) Zigler, '16, died October 25 at the Life Care Center in New Market, Va., where he had been a patient for three weeks. Dr. Zigler was a leader in the Church of the Brethren and in 1984 had been nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize. He was known for establishing the On Earth Peace program and a peace academy and bookstore at the Brethren Service Center in New Windsor, Md.

Zigler had served on the World Council of Churches and helped develop such groups as CARE, Church World Service and CROP. During World War II, he chaired the Advisory Committee for Conscientious Objectors and was executive secretary of the Brethren Service Committee. He also had been executive secretary of home missions for the General Mission Board of the Brethren Church and chairman of the Home Missions Advisory Committee. An ordained minister, he had served as a pastor, as a trustee of Bethany Theological Seminary and as Director of European Brethren Service.

In addition to his bachelor's degree from Bridgewater, Zigler attended Vanderbilt University, Bethany Biblical Seminary and the University of Chicago Divinity School. He has honorary doctorate degrees from Bridgewater, Manchester College and Elizabethtown College.

Zigler was married from 1918 to 1958 to the late Amy Arnold Zigler. The couple is survived by two children, Geraldine Zigler Glick, '46, of Broadway, and Robert S. Zigler of Washington, D.C., six grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. Mrs. Glick's husband, Dr. John T. Glick Jr. is a 1950 Bridgewater graduate.

"Jopmen" Alumni Relays Scheduled

In appreciation of Dr. Harry Jopson's work with the Bridgewater track and cross country teams for so many years, an opportunity has been scheduled to renew old acquaintances with "Doc" and fellow "Jopmen." A "low-key track and field meet," to be followed by a pig roast at Wildwood Park, has been tentatively scheduled for May 3, 1986.

Events will center around relays with each relay consisting of a graduate from the 1950s and before, the 1960s, 1970s, and 1980s, with even-year graduates competing against the odd-year graduates. There also will be several open events, but these will be somewhat dependent on the kind and degree of response to this idea.

Interested parties—get in shape, spread the word, mark your calendars and let us know if you're interested in running or just in coming out for the fun of it. All are welcome! Please respond to Shane Stevens, B.C. Track Coach, c/o Bridgewater College, and tell him in which events you are interested in competing, what year you graduated, and what suggestions you may have.
